

NEWS & POLLS

US Polls

Canada Polls

2011 Canadian Election Polls
 2011 Ontario Election Polls

International Polls

Global @dvisor Polls

Europe

UK and Ireland
 Italy
 France

Australia

MEDIA PARTNERS

Reuters Polls

Postmedia News/
Global Television

Telemundo Polls

TOPICS

Consumer Goods

Consumer Trends

Education & History

Environment

Finance & Economy

Health

Hispanic Research

Lifestyle & Leisure

Loyalty & Satisfaction

Media, Content
& Technology

Politics (Federal)

Politics (Regional)

Social Issues,
Foreign Affairs
& Policy

Ipsos Corporate

FEEDS & ALERTS

Home / News & Polls /

91% HISTORY TEACHERS SAY IT IS IMPORTANT FOR STUDENTS NATION-WIDE TO ACQUIRE THE SAME BODY OF HISTORICAL KNOWLEDGE

TEACHERS RANK THE HISTORY OF “CANADA AT WAR” AS THE MOST IMPORTANT EVENT FOR KIDS TO LEARN ABOUT IN SCHOOL

Friday, October 19, 2011

RESULTS CALL INTO QUESTION FACT THAT ONLY FOUR PROVINCES REQUIRE STUDENTS TO TAKE A CANADIAN HISTORY COURSE TO GRADUATE

October 19, 2011

An Ipsos-Reid poll conducted for the Dominion Institute shows that history teachers overwhelmingly support national standards for history education and believe that the history of Canada at war is the most important event for students to learn about in school.

Survey highlights include: fully 87% of history teachers would support their province participating in the development of national standards; this includes some 74% of Quebec educators. 69% say they would use a voluntary national history exam in their classroom; and a majority (56%) would support the introduction of mandatory testing in history and social sciences. In addition to saying that “Canada at War” is the most important event to teach kids about, 61% think not enough is being done to recognise veterans’ contributions.

Detailed summary of the poll results are contained in the following pages of this release.

The survey was conducted between March 29th and April 30th, 2011. The results were then compiled in July and August. A total of 766 heads of high school history departments from across Canada (including CEGEP in Quebec) were surveyed, yielding results considered accurate ± 3.6%, 19 times out of 20. This poll is the largest of its kind ever conducted.

The Dominion Institute’s executive director, Rudyard Griffiths comments: “After September 11 it is vital that our schools educate kids about Canada’s historic contributions to the fight for freedom and democracy world-wide. This poll shows that teachers want more history, especially military history, taught in schools.” Griffiths continues: “These findings though run counter to the shameful fact that currently only four provinces require students to take a Canadian history course to graduate from high school.”

The Dominion Institute is a national charity dedicated to promoting greater knowledge and appreciation of the country’s history. This survey was sponsored by the Donner Canadian Foundation as part of its ongoing support of public policy research in Canada.

To review the complete media release and analysis of findings please download the PDF files.

DOWNLOADS

Media Release

Analysis
 Tables 1
 Tables 2

TOPICS

Lifestyle & Leisure

CONTACT

John Wright
 Senior Vice President / Vice-président sénior
 Global @dvisor
 (416) 324-2002
john.wright@ipsos.com

BREAKING NEWS MOST VIEWED

Two in Three (67%) Ontarians ‘Agree’ Smoking Should Not Be Allowed In-Doors in Multi-Unit Dwellings

Three Quarters (74%) of Canadians Say They Plan on Only Buying Gifts that are Discounted or On Sale...

New Capability from Ipsos ASI|digital Unlocks the Potential for Mobile Advertising Success

John Wright
IPSOS-REID
(416) 324-2900

---

MORE ON THIS TOPIC

---

Canadians Split On Whether Religion Does More Harm in the World than Good

The Young and Risky Traveller: Nearly Half \(44%\) of Canadians Aged 18 to 34 Typically Fail to Insure Themselves Before Travelling to the United States

Two in Three \(66%\) Canadians Say Living Better Is More Than Just Physical or Mental Health

---